A Village Fair I Recently Visited

Some days ago, on the occasion of Pehela Baishakh I visited a fair with my friends in a village. The fair was held on a huge ground beside a river. The place was very crowded. There were shops of different kinds like toy shops, cosmetic and ornament shops, shops of various types of cups and dishes and many other shops. I bought some balloons and a toy for my brother. There were some other attractions like circus, magic show etc. We decided to see the both. We saw the mesmerizing tricks of the magician in the show. We saw elephants and tigers in the circus and a joker made us laugh so loudly. But I felt pity for those animals who should be kept in jungle, not in cage. We came back home in the evening but the memories of that fair is still clear in my mind. A village fair gives us joy and pleasure. It gives us a short relief from the monotony of our daily life.

Netaji Subhash Chandra Bose

Subhash Chandra Bose is a name that is written in golden letters in the heart of every Indian. His patriotism has made him a national hero. He was born on 23rd January, 1897 in Cuttack, Orissa. The name of his father was Janaki Nath Bose and mother was Prabhavati Dutta. He was selected for the Indian Civil Services in 1921. But he resigned from ICS the same year, as he found it unacceptable to work under the British. After that, he joined politics and sacrificed his job to free India from the British rule. He became the President of Indian National Congress for two times. But due to ideological differences with Mahatma Gandhi, he resigned as Congress President in 1939 and formed a separate party named 'All India Forward Bloc'. Later he formed Azad Hind Fauj or Indian National Army and continued his fight for the freedom of India. He was a man with exceptional patriotic zeal. However, it is supposed that this legendary leader died on 18th August, 1945 in a plane crash. In the history of freedom struggle of India, there is no one who could replace Netaji Subhash Chandra Bose in popularity and respect.

My Aim in Life

Everybody must have an aim in life. A man without an aim in life is like a frog in a narrow well. I have decided my aim in life. I want to be a doctor. I think it is a noble profession in the world because a doctor can save our life. If we become ill, we visit to a doctor for our treatment. So, I want to be a doctor. On the other hand, I want to help the poor people who cannot afford the cost of treatment. They become helpless when anyone of their family is unwell. I want to give them free treatment. We need more doctors in our country to fight in the critical situations like COVID-19. So, I want to be a good doctor and to give the best treatment to the people. Now I am preparing myself well and doing hard work to be a good doctor.
